BRAD ANDERSON

Brad grew up on a farm 1 mile east of Clarkfield, MN. He graduated from NDSU with a bachelor's degree in agronomy and farmed before getting a master's degree in ag economics at the University of Minnesota.

He then went to Washington DC, where he served on the staffs of Congressman Vin Weber and Senator Rudy Boschwitz. After his time on Capitol Hill, Brad joined USDA as a feed grain analyst for ASCS where he contributed to USDA's monthly supply and demand reports.

Brad worked for Informa (formerly Sparks, now S&P Global), Global Ag (a Memphis-based CTA) and Bunge at its headquarters in White Plains, NY. For the past 5 years, Brad has been a crop analyst for Cargill based in the Wayzata, MN headquarters. He works with a group that forecasts U.S. corn, soybean and wheat crops.
